LOCAL PERSPECTIVES ON HRH PRINCE PHILIP, DUKE OF EDINBURGH

Flags have been at half-mast. Bells have been tolled. Some may have sent condolences on-line. Many will have watched the funeral service from Windsor. The nation has been reminded at length of the huge contribution made to our national life by Philip, Duke of Edinburgh. It is not our place to expand this national portrait, but by way of local acknowledgement of the Duke's contribution to history, we offer two personal recollections, with local connotations. The last visit made to this county by the Duke of Edinburgh was probably in 2009, when he accompanied the Queen to St Edmundsbury Cathedral when she distributed Maundy money.

Playford Churchwarden, Colin Hedgley, an ex-naval man, served on the Royal Yacht Britannia, so is well placed to provide a personal reminiscence.

Magazine for the Parishes of Great & Little Bealings, Playford and Culpho

The death of the Duke of Edinburgh has elicited an outpouring of sadness and respect for a man who was often pilloried in the press and the subject of negative reports on the television and radio. But the people of this country have not much in common with the naysayers and moaning minnies. They know otherwise. I had the privilege of serving on the Royal Yacht Britannia for the last eight years of my thirty-four-year career in the Royal Navy.

The stories that people can tell of him are legendary and often best kept to themselves! He was without doubt a forward-looking person and embraced modern technology with gusto and confidence. His work for the World Wildlife Fund stands testament to his caring for the wildlife of all continents.

I well remember our visit to the Galapagos Islands, something he had always wanted to do. Our swim in the sea amongst pelicans, seals, and other creatures was truly amazing as they came right up to you and looked at you quizzically as if to say "What are you doing here? This is my patch!" On leaving the water and walking up the beach we could only stand and marvel at the lizards as they ran across our feet and the local birds, unafraid, pecked at the ground before us. The D of E had an affinity with nature.

He was also keen on technology and took his personal computer everywhere, noting and cataloguing all wildlife sightings and their impact on him and their surroundings. I well remember getting a call to go down to his office and help him out because he had a problem with his computer. Anyone that has a problem with their computer gets tetchy and there was no difference here! We talked the problem through, but he was adamant I did not touch his computer(!) which is difficult if one is trying to find out what is wrong. Eventually, I left his office with him still a little grumpy. But the next day I received a short note thanking me for all my help and advice. It was now working.

His first major yachting win during Cowes Week having competed in numerous races over many years resulted in his visiting the mess immediately afterwards for a beer, or was it six or seven? I can no longer remember – but what a night that was!

Yes, he was a sailor at heart and spoke a sailor's language. Well, I understood every word, anyway!

The second memory comes from Editor, Norman Porter, whose father served in the East Suffolk Police, and for several years was responsible for the policing on the Shotley peninsula. HMS Ganges was on his "patch", and every year he attended the special passing-out parade, part of which ceremony was the scaling of the huge mast by young sailors – the topping out ceremony. The young man who made it to the very top was called the "button boy". To keep his balance, he had to squeeze the lightning conductor between his knees. As a reward for his health and safety-defying feat he was presented with half a crown by the Inspecting Officer. One year, the Inspecting Officer was his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh. Here he is, making the presentation. Father Porter is probably lurking somewhere in the background, providing covert security.

The high-ranking policeman looks like Superintendent Harry Boreham, who used to live in the large red brick house close to the site of the current Police headquarters in Martlesham. A timely recalling of a local brush with history.

We are open and your safety is our number one priority

NATURE NOTES

GOLDFINCHES

This colourful little bird, a member of the finch family, is probably one of our brightest garden visitors. The bright red facial patch is slightly larger on the male. What so often makes them particularly endearing, in our gardens, at least, is their habit of arriving at the feeder in pairs, either side of the feeder, and looking out for one another – they are quite nervous about predators, and there are frequent jerky movements as they watch out for danger.

The nest is built entirely by the female and is generally completed within a week. The male accompanies the female but does not contribute. The nest is neat and compact and is constructed of mosses and lichens and lined with plant down such as that from thistles. I remember one particular Spring watch when the presenter referred to the particularly dirty state of the nest, and the inability of the birds to keep it clean of splatterings and droppings – so much at odds with the neatness of the nest itself. The chicks are fed by both parents, initially on a diet of seeds – thistles, niger and teasels, for example and, increasingly, insects. Niger seed is a favourite, but only available commercially for bird feeders. The parents typically raise two broods each year and occasionally three.

Goldfinches often join up into large flocks in winter, and they can be seen swooping down on fields where their favourite seeds may still be available. Sadly, European goldfinches are still commonly kept and bred in captivity around the world because of their distinctive appearance and pleasant song. The RSPB has campaigned against this practice.

Madonna of the Goldfinch by Raphael

Because of the thistle seeds it eats, in Christian symbolism the European goldfinch is associated with Christ's Passion and his crown of thorns. The Madonna of the Goldfinch, painted by Raphael, illustrates the point.

RED KITES

We seem to have photographic confirmation that red kites have reached us, moving across from the west, and adding to the range of predators in these parts. This profile, with the distinctive forked tail, is all that is needed for recognition.

HISTORY CORNER

PLAYFORD HALL BARN

Even those with a bent for history find it hard to imagine the large red bricked structure just a few feet to the south of Playford Hall as a working farm building but that is what it was for the greater part of its life. Contemporary with The Hall, it has a similar tenoned-purlin roof that dates it to c. 1590 and, as with the main house, was built by Sir Anthony Felton (1565-1614) whose family had come from Shotley at the beginning of the century. The Feltons were to remain lords of the manor until the death of Sir Compton, the 5th and last baronet, in 1719. Dying childless, the Playford estate then passed to Elizabeth his niece who some 25 years earlier had married into the Bristol family of Ickworth. Sir Compton's widow however retained a life interest in the house and on her death in 1734 it was let out firstly to a schoolmaster and then, in around the middle of the century, the east wing was pulled down and The Hall 'reduced to the condition of a farmhouse'. Until that moment the family and their predecessors had themselves cultivated the 350-acre demesne, a stretch of land that ran from around New Buildings up to the Warren, the remainder of the parish being let out to farm tenants.

William Parmenter, whose family farmed in Rushmere, was the first to rent the former home farm and to live in the scaled-down Hall. On his death in 1791, the tenancy passed to his great nephew John Cutting who was declared bankrupt in 1815. It was then that Thomas Clarkson moved in and when he died in 1846 his widow Catherine ran the farm for a further ten years. On her death, their grandson Thomas Clarkson III took over but, leading an unconventional and dissolute life, he squandered his inheritance and in 1867 was forced to sell the contents of the house before running away to Jersey.

It was at this point that the Bristol Estate took the decision to take on tenants other than 'cultivators of the soil' and, in consequence, both house and grounds were re-gentrified. The work was carried out by Richard Phipson who, on completion of this undertaking, became Diocesan Architect whose first assignment was the re-building of Playford church chancel. The first of the new non-farming tenants was to be the Revd. Allen Page Moor, son of a Woodbridge solicitor and a cousin of Canon Moor of Great Bealings but he never moved in. The Hall remained empty for a total of ten years until the arrival of Frederick Crisp in 1878, a recently retired surgeon from Walworth, whose daughters Miss Emma and Miss Rosa lived on there until their deaths in the 1930s.

On Thomas Clarkson III's unscheduled departure in 1867, the 350 acres belonging to Playford Hall Farm was shared out between Lux and Hill Farms and the barn's purpose as an agricultural building came to an end. The Crisps used it as a coach house and stable while an employee's cottage was attached to it as part of the wider upgrading and is where, incidentally, in more recent times the much-loved villager José Booker was born in 1924. Despite such architectural vandalism, some interesting traces of the original building remain. On its west side is a large ornamental doorway of c. 1700, now blocked, which aligns with an earthwork of an east-west roadway in the adjoining meadow. The roadway in turn joins the north-south 'horseway' that runs from The Wash up to New Buildings and then on to Rushmere. The track was diverted in 1708 by Sir Thomas Felton suggesting that at that time the entrance to The Hall was from the west rather than from the east as it is today. Indeed, sketch plans of the village drawn up in the 1830s, wildly out of date, add credence to the fact that the approach to the Hall was indeed down Brook Lane rather than from the main road that runs through the village.

The present terraces to the west of the moat were once the site of other farm buildings that pre-date the barn and through which access to the original west facing house was made, a usual arrangement for such medieval moated houses. These older buildings were taken down in the 1860s after Clarkson had left but the barn survived the clearance. Herman Biddell, born in Playford in 1832, farmer of Hill Farm and builder of Archway House, remembered them well and wrote in 1912 that 'they came almost to the west edge of the moat and what are now the well kept lawns and tennis courts [were] once the site of the stable and cattle yards, the barns, sheds and granaries... the massive structure that is now the coach house and under-groom's residence was the capacious barn...'.

PARISH COUNCIL

SUMMARISED NOTES OF THE ANNUAL PARISH MEETING HELD ON 19TH APRIL

The following four reports were received, full copies of which are attached to the minutes on the PC's website:

- Chairman's Report - Charles Barrington expressed thanks to his Councillor colleagues and to the Clerk for their support during the year, also to Fiona Powell for hosting the virtual meetings. He expressed regret at the loss of three Councillors during the year and welcomed the appointment of the three new Councillors. During the financial year 2020/21, 12 new planning applications were received of which 11 were supported, 2 objections were submitted, and one was neutral. Some were contentious, one resulted in a complaint to ESC which was dismissed on the basis of there being no case to answer. He also covered more aspects of the planning process and the positive effect of the Neighbourhood Plan, and the PC's success in convincing SCC of the need to extend the 30mph from Boot St bridge to the junction with Rosery Lane. Grateful thanks were expressed to our two District Councillors for their funding support from their grant allocations. Assistance was given to the PCC with a volunteer scheme to provide assistance to residents during the pandemic, and a Talking Bench has been installed in Lower Street, thanks to efforts by Sally Johnson.

- Village Hall – Peter Prentice presented a report for the Bealings Village Hall Trust. A major project to provide an extension and enhancements to the Hall, car park, courts and playing field had to be shelved due to prohibitive estimated costs. However, during the year the car park surface was improved, and a replacement of the flat roof was installed. As a result of a grant from the two District Councillors, Wi-Fi was installed, and a large smart TV purchased. Appreciation was expressed from the Trustees for the donations from the two Parish Councils, and to Margaret Wilson and Keith Beaumont for their hard work.

- Fynn-Lark News – Norman Porter reported on the important role of the magazine during the year of the pandemic. Following financial problems, the previous year, the situation is now resolved but needs to be sustained. Grateful thanks were expressed to individuals, the Parish Councils, churches, other organisations and advertisers for their financial support. Following an exploration of views, it was clear that FLN is widely valued by the residents of the four parishes and that hard copies are still enjoyed. Each PC now has a representative on the committee and some additional help has been secured. The magazine will continue on the same path in 2021.

- Bealings Community Hub – Helen Clarkson-Fieldsend reported on the 2020 activities and a look forward to 2021. She said that the Hub serves not only Little and Great Bealings residents, but also other surrounding areas. She thanked all residents on the Founding Committee for their vision and their work. New heating and emergency fire system has been installed in Little Bealings Church, and broadband, Wi-Fi and a large screen and projector is being installed, to be followed later in the year by a permanent kitchen. It is anticipated that the Tearoom and Shop will re-open in early July, and that all previous activities can gradually be recommenced. The Hub will be pilot venue for ESC's Suffolk Cinema Club.

OTHER MATTERS DISCUSSED

A suggestion was made that a Befriending Scheme would be beneficial to the village, this idea was well supported. It will be explored further by a representative from each of the PC and the PCC and will be discussed further at the next PC meeting. Steve Condon volunteered on behalf of the PC.

Norman Porter reported on the progress of the History of Bealings project that he has been working on. It is hoped this will be published in book form before Christmas.

SUMMARISED NOTES OF THE PARISH COUNCIL MEETING HELD ON 19TH APRIL

The main purpose of this meeting was to discuss planning application DC/21/1273/FUL & 1274/LBC – Rosery Farmhouse, Lodge Road – Amendments and variations to approved works to listed farmhouse and outbuildings – The Chairman invited the applicant to provide some background regarding the reasons for the variations, and to explain what they are. Several questions were raised during the discussion. The PC resolved to support the applications.

Planning application DC/21/1591/VOC re Barn C, Former Woodbarn Cottages was withdrawn from the agenda, as ESC had sent notice of it prematurely. It will be discussed at a later date.

Regan Scott mentioned an imminent meeting between ESC and SCC re Sizewell C that he will be attending. He will report to the next PC meeting. He also drew attention to a Green Villages project and suggested this could be factored into the next review of the Neighbourhood Plan

Date of next meeting: Saturday 1st May at 9.30 a.m. by video conference – Annual Parish Council Meeting

The public are welcome to attend any

Parish Council meeting and may speak for a maximum of 3 minutes on any item on the Agenda at the beginning of that item. Full draft minutes and approved minutes of the Parish Council are available on the Council's website.

ST MARY'S

Rather like a butterfly emerging from its cocoon the church is emerging from lockdown. This it has done with a flurry of activity over Easter Week – what more appropriate time could there be for a new beginning? Over the period of lock-down so many old habits have been challenged and may even have died away. Lockdown weariness has sapped energies and enthusiasms. We now have to face up to the challenge of a new beginning and see that new beginning as an opportunity to re-engage not only with those for whom the local church had a role before, but perhaps also with some who discovered things about themselves and their place in the scheme of things which may have led to a changing view of the world, life, and their meaning. Maybe, sadly, the death toll, the effects of long covid, together with the effect of bereavement on so many people can give a different perspective on life. Our local church not only reflects certain beliefs, but also certain values, and is there for everyone. Our PCC is fully aware of the new challenges, and, together with our Priest, Father Nigel, will do its best to prepare for a possibly different kind of future. As ever, we look for the support of the whole of our community as we do our best to maintain a church somewhere at or near the heart of village life.

LOOKING BACK

We can look back to a flurry of activity over Easter Week. Before that we had the special twin tree-planting ceremonies in Woodbridge and Great Bealings churchyards, celebrating the setting up of the new United Benefice.

That coincided with the Feast of the Annunciation, so was followed by a Communion Service. The following week Maundy Thursday was similarly commemorated, and your churchwarden was invited to let members of the congregation see what Maundy money looks like. And then - the culmination of it all - our Easter Sunday Service. So, three services in a fortnight. Some contrast to the previous year!

PCC MEETING

There was a meeting of the PCC on Thursday April 15th, with a full attendance. We were joined by two members of the Woodbridge PCC, in the same way that two Bealings PCC members are invited to each meeting of their partner PCC.

Main points emerging:

Quinquennial Inspection: necessary repairs are prioritized in the report. Those which require the attention of a specialist contractor will be dealt with. Other recommendations can be met by voluntary labour, so we are looking at arranging a day when we can bring together a work party to address any such problems, and to save money. It was agreed that the recommended electrical works should be a priority.

It was agreed that the re-ordering of the space at the back of the church should be addressed as part of a package of action. The new space will enable us to organize small scale gatherings, in a more comfortable setting.

Away Day: Members of both PCCs will meet together in Eyke to discuss ideas as to the best way forward for the new United Benefice. The most likely date is July 3rd – to be confirmed. The main thrust of the day will be to explore how the church can grow in four respects: growing in God, Influence, Youthfulness and Numbers Do approach any member of the PCC if you would like to broach any fresh ideas. The pattern and type of services will be another item under consideration.

Finance: Both income and outgoings were down over the year, with a resultant shortfall. Happily, the decline in offertory takings and event income was partially offset by a one-off lower parish share payment. It was agreed that we should become members of the Parish Giving Scheme, and that this should be allied with a revival of slightly more formalised links with Friends of the Church.

Annual Report for the Annual Meeting ((Thursday 13th May). The last one was delivered in October, and very little has happened since. It was expected that the Report would be a short one.

Streaming of Services: the pandemic has changed many things. In some places church involvement has been increased by the provision of streaming, especially for those who cannot attend services in person. Thinking may have to adopt in the light of covid experiences.

LOOKING AHEAD

Our next service is the Family Communion Service at 9.30 a.m. on the first Sunday of May. As ever, St Mary's, Woodbridge will be offering a much wider range of options, and you are warmly

OPEN GARDENS 2021

The PCC decided that, while the concept of Open Gardens is a good one, we would probably be in contravention of regulations regarding large meetings, even outside, if we have a drinks gathering at the end of it all, as an integral part of the proceedings. We are now provisionally looking at the afternoon of June 26th, as an alternative, but this has to be confirmed. The range of flowers will be rather different, and gardens will probably have dried up, but we stress that the occasion is a social one, with attractions available other than the purely horticultural, so hope that we can still put on a social event that will be enjoyed by many.

ROSE HINTON – VIOLINIST

Those who remember Rose Hinton's Jazz concert in Great Bealings Church in honour of her grandfather, jazz musician, Cyril Hellier, may be interested to hear that she is crowd-funding an EP of that kind of music with a large 12-piece band, Down for the Count (Presumably a reference to Count Basie!). She is raising funds through Kickstarter – an organization which helps artists in these difficult times to raise money towards worthwhile artistic projects, is already close to her £3000 target, and raising that target even higher to enable her to do even more. We hope to re-arrange her classical concert – postponed because of Covid – later in the year - together with the whole series of concerts originally planned for last winter. So, keep your eyes open, both for the EP and for news of the concert series.

BEALINGS PLANT SALE 2021

Sadly, there was not one, at least not in the traditional form. The extended cold weather and the enduring effects of Covid and lock-down had a major impact on what should have been springtime enthusiasm. Our thanks to those who did defy the odds, both in terms of producing plants and of supporting the growers by sourcing the results of their efforts around the two villages. We can but hope for better luck next year, and a return to the sort of climate, both social and meteorological, which is conducive to Plant Sales.

Please note that plants will continue to be available from some sources, and the selling of them was not limited to just one Saturday morning. If you get your name on a list for purchases in advance, you can still support the concept of a village plant sale.

TIM PASSMORE VISITS LITTLE BEALINGS

One of the actions our MP Dr Dan Poulter took from our Zoom meeting on 25 March was to invite Tim Passmore, the Suffolk Police and Crime Commissioner, to visit The Street and Sandy Lane in Little Bealings, to see the speeding and parking 'issues' in the village around school time. Tim Passmore visited on the afternoon of Tuesday 13 April, along with Elaine Bryce, Dan's PA.

Margaret Wilson and I had the opportunity to show them our concerns with parking in The Street and the speed and volume of traffic passing through, which leads to dangerous situations when parents are walking between the Village Hall car park and Bealings School. Over 30 cars are parked at the Village Hall each day to deliver and collect pupils attending the school, many from villages outside the Bealings and Playford area.

A few years ago the Parish Council achieved the introduction of a 20mph zone along The Street, to help protect all pedestrians. SCC's installation of two poles to hold Speed Indicator Devices in The Street is awaited, and these devices will enable us to collect data on the volume and speed of traffic passing along this road, as well as reminding drivers of their speed.

Mr. Passmore will be discussing the possibility of a police presence with the police operational team, to remind drivers of the hazards when parking irresponsibly and why a 20-mph limit is in place. He fully accepted that the police would not normally enforce this speed limit but agreed that our village had a particular need.

This is obviously not a long-term solution and parking at the Village Hall has also always had to consider the needs of those hiring the Hall, so the Parish Council will be considering whether any new land can be made available to provide a suitable parking area. Mr. Passmore suggested that the Community Infrastructure Levy from East Suffolk Council along with a contribution from Suffolk County Council Education Department might be a way to provide funding if land can be found.

We were very pleased that Elaine Bryce could attend as she is standing for election to become the Carlford Division councillor. If successful, she will be our representative within SCC and this visit enabled her to have an even greater insight into Little Bealings. Candidates from the Green Party and the Labour Party are also standing and full details are on the Parish Council noticeboards.

It was resolved that the Council objected to both applications on the grounds that they breached ESC Local Plan Policy SCLP4.3 by proposing the intensification of an employment site, as productivity enhancement of the site would result in an unacceptable adverse effect on the living conditions of local residents in relation to noise, vibration and dust, as proven by the existence of over 6,000 residents' complaints to the existing operations in the preceding five years. It was also resolved that an Environmental Impact Assessment should be required by ESC before the applications were determined and that the Chairman would represent the Council if the matter were to be determined at an ESC Committee. The applications were due to be considered at ESC Planning Committee on 27 April.

THE ANGELA COBBOLD HALL – NEWS UPDATE !

Following ESC approval of our application to install a new cess pool on ACH land at the rear of the Hall, our Contractors, Drain Doctor Co. completed the task in 3 days. The cost of work was covered, in the main, by a Garfield Weston grant and other donors. As a result, the drainage issue has now been resolved.

In addition, we will now take out the old kitchen and build a new one to the front of the Hall, away from the toilets, financed by part of the ESC Exemplar grant. This is a major achievement to our project of attending to all repairs and improvements and, under guidance of ESC, meeting the strict rules for a proper “working kitchen “. Once the opportunity arises and we meet the Govt’s Pandemic guidelines, we shall be free to re-open your Hall once more – “Then it will be Party Time! “.

CHURCH NEWS

Playford Church like many others is slowly coming out of the deep slumber of Covid and all its restrictions. Our Sunday service, on the second Sunday of every month, is now up and running with, of course, face masks and distancing. But we are coping very well and looking forward to the time when a coffee and chat afterwards is something we can enjoy. Further on in the magazine Gary Jones will spell out his intentions of holding more than one service per month at Playford.

Many thanks to all those who provided flowers for Easter Sunday. The church looked magnificent. And thanks to Sally for all the arranging. Well done to all.

The grass cutting season is on us again and a big, huge thank you to Brian Buckle for his "sit-on" grass cutting service.

Without him the churchyard would be a jungle. Also, to the other Brian, Brian Seward for his never-ending fight against Mr Mole who appears intent on digging up all the churchyard.

BINKY AND CO.

Binky was getting really fed up now. He had read in the paper that hairdressers would be open in the morning. Well he had been standing there since eight fifty five and it was now nine thirty.

He was first in the queue. In fact he was the only one in the queue. Just goes to prove, he thought that the majority of men around here do not care how they look, scruffy lot.

But Binky was getting stressed. He took out his packet of anti-depressants. At that moment some yobbo ran past and stole them out of his hand. "Well, whoever you are I hope that makes you happy" shouted Binky.

At least he still had his mobile phone, at which point it began to ring. He guessed it must be his wife; the ring had a sort of angry urgency to it, like ignore this if you dare. He put the phone to his ear, well about six inches away from it as if that small distance would make a difference to the aural pain he was about to receive. Much in the same way that some people watch gruesome scenes in a film through the thin gap between the fingers of one hand, "Hello darling" he said in the meekest and most supplicant manner. "Don't darling me" came the retort. "Binky you are an idiot. You've got it all wrong, again. The shops don't open until tomorrow, get back home now" Binky thought for a moment. Ah yes that would explain this gang of small boys on the opposite side of the road pointing and laughing. "Right ho" said Binky walking off purposefully in the direction of the pub which was also closed. Binky had another panic when he could not remember where in the car park he had left his car. His panic became worse when he thought of the reception he would receive if he arrived home without the car especially as his wonderful wife required it that afternoon to visit her sister. She explained to Binky that her sister was in the family bubble which stretched for seventy five miles. Binky thought that she and Dominic Cummings would make a fine pair. On second thoughts he didn't dislike Dominic Cummings that much. Binky made his way to the car park passing the local bookshop. In the window it was highlighting the latest Oxford English Dictionary and Thesaurus.

Ah yes thought Binky a Thesaurus is great, there's no other word for it. He found his car and drove home slowly putting off the inevitable clash of personalities. When he arrived, the lovely Indigo was there waiting for him. "Binky you are an absolute idiot" she shouted at him with all the class of a pre-war fish wife. (That should get the editor three months in prison if it's printed). Binky agreed with her. He went meekly to his little office and carried on typing where he had left off the night before. He had recently started his new book "Male Genitalia of Butterflies of the Balkan Peninsular". It wasn't going to be a very big book. His mind started to wander and he thought of all the good jobs he had been offered in the past. He was once offered a job in Seoul. He thought it would be a good Korea move. But he turned it down as he couldn't foresee his vision of loveliness, Indigo, walking down the main street with her trousers and coat tied up with farmers orange baling twine.

He breathed out a long sigh. Things could be worse he thought. After all, six out of seven dwarfs aren't Happy.

WORD FROM THE STUDY

Easter is a very busy period in the Church, from the beginning of Holy Week through to Easter Day. So, the armchair and me on Sunday afternoon are great friends. It was wonderful and encouraging to see so many people in our Churches on Good Friday and Easter Day; both at Little Bealings and Playford, and I very much look forward to seeing you all again soon.

The love of creation is at the very heart of the Easter message. John 3 16 tells us “God so loved the world, that He gave His only Son”. Through the story of Easter, the message is loud and clear. The resurrection sets us free. It gives us new hope in sometimes what seems a dark world; faith does not get us over our problems, under them, round them, but through them. Our faith is our strength. No longer does the past hold us captive.

The announcement of the death of Prince Phillip was one of sadness, but also when we think of his life, it is one of gratitude. He was a constant companion at the side of Her Majesty, the Queen, but also someone who has made a difference. We think of how many charities he was patron of, particularly The Duke of Edinburgh Scheme that has changed many young peoples’ lives, giving them a sense of purpose. So, we are grateful for his legacy which will live on and thank God for his life and influence and acts of kindness he showed to so many people.

Every day, we awake, we have the gift of a new day. An opportunity for us to bring love, into places where there is so much unrest. God did the same at Easter. None of us know what the future holds, but through Easter, we know the one who holds the future.

As we begin to climb slowly out of lockdown, so our Churches will start to get back, so as well as our once-a-month Sunday worship, there will be a mid-week service once a month – third Wednesday 11am at Playford; the Church will be open for private prayer on Wednesday at Little Bealings from 9.30am until 12 noon, and throughout the month of May, we will be doing Morning Prayer on Thursday 9.30am at Little Bealings. Please do come and join for any of these services, or to just spend some time in quiet, just to get away from the hustle and bustle of a busy world and to find our Churches a place of prayer, stillness and where we can meet God, and He meets us.

Blessings to you all.
